well functioning financial markets are crucial for the economic well being and the justice of contemporary societies the great financial crisis has shown that a perspective that naively trusts in the self regulating powers of free markets cannot capture what is at stake in understanding and regulating financial markets the damage done by the great financial crisis including its distributive consequences raises serious questions about the justice of financial markets as we know them this volume brings together leading scholars from political theory law and economics in order to explore the relation between justice and financial markets broadening the perspective from a purely economic one to a liberal egalitarian one the volume explores foundational normative questions about how to conceptualize justice in relation to financial markets the biases in the legal frameworks of financial markets that produce unjust outcomes and perspectives of justice on specific institutions and practices in contemporary financial markets written in a clear and accessible language the volume presents analyses of how financial markets should function and how the great financial crisis came about proposals for how the structures of financial markets could be reformed and analysis of why reform is not happening at the speed that would be desirable from a perspective of justice financial markets in the ce4 countries are still shallow compared to other advanced eu countries while the government bond markets are comparable in size measured by capitalization in percent of gdp the private bond private credit and equity markets lag behind empirical analysis in this paper helps identify factors that explain this phenomenon we find that the observed differences cannot be explained by macroeconomic variables only but incorporating indicators of institutional development and external funding eliminates the gap in the case of the equity and private credit markets however for the private bond market a significant gap remains even after accounting for these factors
