a very welcome volume of essays questioning the presumption of irreconcilable conflict between science and religion british journal for the history of science the conflict thesis the idea that an inevitable irreconcilable conflict exists between science and religion has long been part of the popular imagination the warfare between science and religion assembles a group of distinguished historians who explore the origin of the thesis its reception the responses it drew from various faith traditions and its continued prominence in public discourse several essays examine the personal circumstances and theological idiosyncrasies of important intellectuals including john william draper and andrew dickson white who through their polemical writings championed the conflict thesis relentlessly others consider what the thesis meant to different religious communities including evangelicals liberal protestants roman catholics eastern orthodox christians jews and muslims finally essays both historical and sociological explore the place of the conflict thesis in popular culture and intellectual discourse today based on original research and written in an accessible style the essays in the warfare between science and religion take an interdisciplinary approach to question the historical relationship between science and religion and bring much needed perspective to an often bitter controversy contributors include thomas h aechtner ronald a binzley john hedley brooke elaine howard ecklund noah efron john h evans maurice a finocchiaro frederick gregory bradley j gundlach monte harrell hampton jeff hardin peter harrison bernard lightman david n livingstone david mislin efthymios nicolaidis mark a noll ronald l numbers lawrence m principe jon h roberts christopher p scheitle m alper yalçinkaya many white people and some conservative black people believe that affirmative action programs are unfairly depriving more deserving whites of jobs and education opportunities the author argues that is a myth for example university admissions data demonstrates that despite affirmative action rhetoric there remains systemic bias against black students sociological data on criminal record race and employment found that white people with a criminal record had a better chance of getting a call back than black people without one renowned professor of social work dr rudolph alexander jr analyses many examples which demonstrate that the claim that affirmative action programs have led to unfair discrimination against white people of equal ability is a myth though not always comfortable reading the book is an important addition to the literature on equality diversity and critical race theory in miseducating americans richard f hamilton examines accounts of american history appearing in textbooks and popular accounts and compares these with the reports contained in scholarly monographs the task to determine how certain myths and misconstructions became accepted as recorded history hamilton provides much needed correction of those misleading accounts was america historically the land of the free not if you take into account slavery discrimination and post civil war segregation policies was america in the late nineteenth century truly expansionist as american textbooks imply or did it actually capitalize on unexpected political and economic opportunities like russia s desire to rid itself of alaska was the acquisition of the philippines a zealous profit seeking effort aiming for the china market or the fortuitous consequences of a move against spain during the spanish american war miseducating americans debunks many commonly accepted explanations of historical facts it contends that many accounts are oversimplifications and some are one sided depictions of virtue hamilton traces the sources of these misconstructions which mostly come from history textbooks written by authors aiming for popular audiences he then offers explanations as to how and why the inaccuracies have been repeated and passed on historians know a great deal about how wars begin but far less about how they end whilst much has been written about the forces passions and institutions that mobilized societies for war and worked to sustain that mobilization through years of struggle much less is known about the equally complex processes that demobilized societies in the wake of armed conflict as such this new book will be welcomed by scholars wishing to understand the effects of the great war in its fullest context including the reactions behaviors and attitudes of ordinary europeans during the tumultuous events of the years of demobilization taking a transnational perspective on demobilization this study demonstrates that the experience of mass industrial war generated remarkably similar pressures within both the defeated and victorious countries using as examples the important provincial centres of munich and manchester this book examines the experiences of european urban dwellers from the last year of the war until the early 1920s utilizing a wide variety of sources from more than twenty archives in germany britain and the united states this book recovers voices from the period that are often lost in conventional narratives capturing the richness and diversity of the ideas visions and conflicts engendered by those difficult and tumultuous years the result is a book that paints a vivid picture of the difficulties that peace could bring to economies and societies that had rapidly and fully adapted to the demands of industrial world war
